

Joe was one of the nicest and sincerest people I had a pleasure of meeting, in dentistry and in life. May he rest in peace.

Your Dad was a great influence on my thinking about the profession for decades and really brought so much sense where it was needed. We will miss him in the profession.

Joe was a very special, caring person and a trendsetter in dentistry. He will be greatly missed.

Each of us wishes to make a difference in life. Joe succeeded. Both personally and professionally he will be missed.

He changed the way I practice dentistry. He will be greatly missed.

He was one of my favorite people.

Anyone who knew Joe is really going to miss him. He was my freshman dental school roommate and we've had a lot of fun for forty years. He was the most creative and inventive person in our class. He had his patented "skyhook" on the basketball court, he personally engineered our dental school class movie, was the host of innumerable card games just to name a few. We enjoyed kicking each other's butts on the golf course just to win a buck! What a guy! Rest in peace Joe

What an amazing man and an inspirational influence on so many, including me, but more importantly, I know how much he loved you and respected you as a dentist. He was so proud of you.

Your Dad meant a lot to all of us. He was a good friend and teacher.
We are all going to miss him.

Sure, he wanted to be successful as a business man, but it was never without trying to help the profession.

He wanted all of us to be better.

I am so sad, so unhappy for my personal loss. MY LOSS

"the bell tolls for thee" And that is true.....I am so very very sad.

I want the group to know, he was a special guy and a great personal friend to me the best part of our friendship for 20 years was the "bottom line" conversations we would have when 9 11 happened Betsy and I was stuck in Wichita after lecturing to the Wichita dental society

Sandy and Joe could not have been more wonderful to us and took care of us for three days.

Dentistry has lost, "one of the good guys"

The world is full of self serving, self promoting, dental gurus.

Joe, wanted to bring what he thought was the best bottom line information.

"his memory should be a blessing for us all"

I only met Joe once about a year and a half ago at a meeting. Since then I've read all his newsletter archives, watched a video on another of his lectures and started using the H&H technique. I also corresponded with him several times by email and he was always quick to lend me his advice. Definitely one of the good guys. I'm sorry for your loss.

I never met Joe in person, but I felt like a friend, because he was so open and inviting. This forum that he started has made me a better dentist. I will miss him.

I wanted to say how sorry I was to hear about Dr Joe. I have thoroughly enjoyed the Kisco newsletter for years and the straight forward and practical advice he offered. I only met him one time at course in Dallas a few years ago.

He was so approachable and easy to talk to and was such a nice guy. My thoughts and prayers are with his family.

For Thirty years Joe has blessed me with his friendship . I feel so fortunate and grateful to all his mentorship and love. From the details of my first office planning, management issues ,to new product use and on and on, Joe was Always there . He was gleaming showing of his first grandkid. Words cannot describe what he has meant to me and many . I lost a brother. His memory will be eternal. God speed Joe.

He was one of the nicest persons I ever met.

He will be missed.

I would like you and your family to know that we are your extended family of dentists and we are all sharing your loss. Your dad was a fine man always cared about our profession and the quality of service our patients received. I used to meet him every year in Destin, FL at profitable Dentist Seminar for about 20 years. He was always interested in sharing his wisdom without expecting anything in return. He was a very generous, caring, compassionate person. He was wonderful human being. We have lost a giant in the field of dentistry. In his passing passing away we have become poorer. He was always very proud of you.

My thoughts and prayers to and your family. Joe was an exceptional human being who just happened to practice dentistry. And along the way he has unselfishly helped so many of us in the profession. He could not have been more humble and generous in sharing with all of us his passion for the art and science of dentistry. I am proud to have known him and been taught by him.

My sincerest condolences to you and your family. Please take comfort in the memory of a great man who did a great deal for our profession and I am sure even more for your family. We all strive to leave a legacy and for most of us, that is usually confined to our families and perhaps a few others. Your father left a legacy to so many of us both in terms of technical expertise but more in the manner in which we conduct our practices with respect for our patients and for our community of dentists. We need more Joe Stevens and we are all the more poorer for his passing. I hope this email group will continue as but another part of Joe's memory.

I attended one of your dad's seminars in Denver years ago. I remember how approachable he was the most. There are many dental lecturers who I wouldn't dream of approaching, but your dad drew people to him. As amazing a dentist and businessman as he was, I know he will be missed most as a father, husband, grandfather, brother, son, and friend.

Many years ago, As CE chairman in New Jersey AGD I had Joe lecture for us. I felt his lecture meant the most to me on how I practiced over the last 30 years. I'll never forget him and what his being here has done for my patients, my family, and my own sanity.

My heart is broken for you and your family. He was an amazing man and mentor to me. A truly inspiring individual that effected me deeply.

What a wonderful, fabulous, caring, honest, ethical, trustworthy, intelligent, hard-working person Joe was.

Joe was a very good friend and mentor of mine. He impacted my life and dental career, and many other people's as well.

I'm from NYC and for years I thought all other dentists were jerks (no offense to anyone on this forum ;p).

When I heard your Dad speak, it was like talking to my own father. He was straight up, honest, hard working and down to Earth. I've listened to almost all of his Audio lectures, read his emails, newsletters, and published articles. I can't believe that he's gone, but you should know (and probably do already know) that he's done a world of good in the time he had. He had a warm and caring heart that was open to anyone that needed some comfort. I therefore wish you and your family much comfort and only the best in the future.

Jasmin, I had the pleasure of attending several of your dad's lectures over the past few years, and he was an outstanding instructor. He was also a great person, and obviously very proud of you, as he spoke of you often. I still remember how excited he was when you were expecting your first child (it came up in conversation as I was very evidently expecting while present at his endo lectures!) He beamed as he spoke of waiting for his grandchild to arrive! My heart and prayers go out to you, your family, the office team, and all of his patients. He touched many lives and has helped make many of us into better dentists.

I finally got to catch your dad's lecture at Dr. Griffin's event in Nashville, and we immediately got our wireless headsets from KISCO and continue to use many clinical tips he gave us that day. I had always read his newsletters as well, so he has been a practice mentor to me and I'll always be grateful for his contributions to helping dentists work smarter, faster, easier and have more fun!
